THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1912.

Entered at the Greenville, Ky., post office as second class matter.

AMERICAN geographers are to spend two months seeing the country. This is wise, as the United States has as much geography to the square mile as any land.

One Pittsburgh man's wife left him because he had his automobile painted red without consulting her. There is no possibility of exhausting the causes of marital infidelity.

If some great politicians were as particular to burn all correspondence as some steel trust officials have been to destroy certain documents, the present campaign would be less interesting.

No vessel flying the stars and stripes has entered England's Thames in a year. But a lot of the ships bearing aloft the flags of other nations have been kept going by American greenbacks.

A SANCTIONER of gasoline writes that he wishes the Standard Oil company had not been dissolved, as he now pays more for his gasoline. He is just learning that this kind of competition is the life of the oil trade.

ONE OF Brokers available to learn how to avoid arrests and then turned to burglary. But the policeman got him. Detective stories are at their worst when taken seriously.

Blood Pressure.

Much is heard nowadays about "blood pressure." Among valentimarians indeed it has become a sine qua non; he who cannot boast of a high blood pressure is of small consequence among them. There is, however, some significance in variation of blood pressure; an abnormally high blood pressure is not to be treated lightly — nor, for that matter, is one abnormally low. The term itself means simply the pressure of the flowing blood upon the walls of the arteries. When the heart contracts, it forces the blood into the arteries, and thus slightly distends their elastic walls. These in turn contract, and force the blood along into the minute arteries, and capillaries through which it has to pass in order to enter the veins.

Normally there is exact balance and adaptation; but if the heart is enlarged, and beats too forcibly, if the elasticity of the arterial walls is diminished, if the combined area of the small arteries and capillaries is reduced, or if the blood is less fluid than is normal, the pressure is raised.

The doctor determines the amount of pressure by means of an apparatus that measures the force required to stop the pulse beat at the wrist. This force is usually expressed in terms of the height of a column of mercury, the pressure of which equals the force needed to stop the pulse. Thus when the blood pressure is one hundred and fifty, the compressive force required to stop the pulse equals that exerted by the weight of a column of mercury one hundred and fifty millimeters high.

Blood pressure varies normally, according to age. In young children it is about one hundred; in adults under forty it is about one hundred and twenty-five; between fifty and sixty years it may be one hundred and forty or one hundred and fifty, and after sixty it may rise to one hundred and sixty or even more within the limits of health. The pressure varies also under the influence of various conditions; it is raised by overexertion.

Obviously, the patient should not waste time in guessing which type of inflammation he is suffering from, although until the doctor arrives it is always well to keep the eye as clean as possible with a mild boric acid solution and pledges of absorbent cotton (each to be used once only). And whatever is the matter with the eye, wind, dust and strong light should be avoided.

When an epidemic of conjunctivitis attacks a school or a community, the greatest care should be worn to prevent the spread of contact or by the use of common towels or sponges. The bits of sterilized absorbent cotton used for cleaning the eyes should always be burned immediately.

Another disagreeable and painful affliction is the sty, a boil that forms on the edge of the eyelid. It chiefly attacks young people of both sexes between the ages of twelve and twenty, and signifies that the general condition is poor. For that reason the constitutional treatment is important; when the stomach and liver are doing their work properly, sties will not recur — unless, indeed, they are caused by eye-strain, in which case proper glasses will drive them away.

You can sometimes avert a sty if you attend to it promptly enough, but if you apply collodion for the purpose, be careful that none of it gets into the eye itself. When there is much swelling and tenderness, it is useless to try to stop the pointing of the boil. When pus has formed, a little incision should be made, and relief will be immediate.

THE LINE OF THE SPINE shown above is the curved line which truthfully presents to your eye the condition of your spine. If you have any trouble with your spine, you should consult a physician.

The reason for this is the family sewing machine is ordinarily constructed, is altogether wrong. You cannot sit straight in your chair while operating your machine. It is right to sit straight and upright, and you should do so. If you can sew on your machine, you can't. The needle is 4½ inches from the center where it enters the fabric, following a curve which twists your body to the left. This twist calls for a wrench and strain of all the delicate chords and ligaments, affecting stomach, spleen, liver, kidneys, bowels, nerves, and resulting in SIDE NEEDLE SPINE.

If it were possible for a growing child to operate an ordinary sewing machine, it would be injured for life. The carelessness in sitting and twisting and straining its vital organs would be injured to such an extent as to produce nervous disorders.

In schools, as you know, desks and chairs are especially constructed to avoid spinal curvature.

THE STANDARD CENTRAL NEEDLE machine is a new type of family sewing machine designed as a health saver and preventer of spinal curvature.

In this machine the needle is central with the worker — directly over the center of the treadle. To use it calls for no twist of the spine. It causes no strain on internal organs and corrects curvature of the spine.

With THE STANDARD CENTRAL NEEDLE machine a woman is safe in using it all day and every day, without it she is not.

Compare the two pictures — positions taken by the wife and deido which you will have — from the book "A STITCH IN THE SPINE" which is yours free for mailing and every intelligent woman will want it and will thank us for bringing it to her attention.

It goes into the subject of sewing machine construction thoroughly and explains how to use THE STANDARD CENTRAL NEEDLE machine. It gives the health of woman and growing child, and how easy it is to use. If you value your health and the health of your children, send for a copy at our no obligation. It is FREE. A postal will bring it to return mail.

Jail Delivery Frustrated.

But for the vigilance and quick action of Jailer George York there would have been an escape of prisoners from our anticipated residence for criminals Monday night. About 3:30 o'clock Mr. York heard a peculiar noise, and having in mind the safety of his jail boarders, he dressed quickly and made investigation. He was just in the nick of time for just when he reached the jail he saw the major portion of a man's body sticking out one of the windows of the lower compartment of the building. Investigation revealed that it was Eller Davis, who is under indictment for housebreaking, and he was attempting to reverse his operations, by breaking out of the house. Mr. York persuaded him to wiggle back, and remain. Davis had sawn the bars of his cell, and by removing a stovepipe from the window gratings had only one or two to saw which he had done, and in a minute would have been free. It requires constant watch on the part of the jailer to prevent prisoners from escaping. Our new jail will eliminate all this.

That was a fine blackberry winter.

Sunday was a cold, gloomy day, disagreeable in every way, and shutting most people in for the day. Fires were in demand, so that a stay at home would be comfortable.

Mr. W. O. Belcher, who has been confined to his home with smallpox for some weeks, is out again, and will soon return to his duties in the revenue service. He says that he had always declared that he would prefer the disease to submitting to vaccination, but has changed his mind, and, and advises his friends to be vaccinated.

Better hurry and pay your city taxes; penalty will be added June 1.

Mr. Denis James, of St. Louis, is here on a visit to his parents, Judge and Mrs. J. J. James. He recently graduated in the St. Louis School of Pharmacy, and will work in that city for some months, at least.

The war on rats, dirt, flies and weeds is not as general as it should be, but many persons are securing healthful conditions and beautiful surroundings in this way.

The rain and windstorm last Saturday afternoon did considerable damage over this section. Trees and fences were blown down, and some houses were damaged in the county by the wind. Telephone lines were wrecked, and foreign service was completely stopped for several hours.

The general bloom promises a heavy crop of blackberries, which will be good news, as many reports were that the briars had all been frozen out by the hard winter.

For sale—One full blooded Jersey male calf, one year old; will sell worth the money.

TIRED RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

A North Carolina Man Suggests a Remedy

Greensboro, N. C.—"For a long time I was so run down and debilitated that I could hardly drag around. My appetite was poor and I could not sleep nights. I had tried different so-called tonics without benefit. I was advised to try your cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol, and I am so glad I did, for it gave me a hearty appetite. I soon commenced to sleep soundly, and I feel strong, well and more active than I have for years. Every run-down or debilitated person should just give Vinol a trial." K. Allisbrook.

What Vinol did for Mr. Allisbrook will do for every weak, run-down or debilitated person in this vicinity. To show our faith we will furnish the medicine free if it does not do as we claim. Come in and get a bottle on those terms.

The closing exercises of Greenville graded school began last Thursday afternoon. Thursday and Saturday the pupils of the three grades of the music department, under direction of the teacher, Mrs. J. The social gathering at Masonic Hall last Friday night was one of the enjoyable events of the season. Something like 150 members, their wives, daughters and friends were in attendance. The addresses by Mr. Robt. Hardison, Jr. and Judge R. O. Pace were well received, and the singing by the quartet was pleasing. The work of the ladies in the preparation and serving the refreshments was rewarded by the enthusiastic response and appreciation of all, and received the praise of everyone.
